

Prof. Ivo Iavicoli MD PhD

Ivo Iavicoli obtained his degree in medicine and surgery and his specialty in occupational medicine both cum laude at the Catholic University of Sacred Heart (Rome) and his Ph.D. in Occupational Medicine and Industrial Hygiene at the University of Milan.

He is currently Full Professor and director of the school of specialization in Occupational Medicine at the University of Naples Federico II.

His research is focused on Occupational Health, Industrial Hygiene and Industrial Toxicology and documented by 251 publications and an H index of 46 (Scopus: May 2023). He is currently Chair of the ICOH scientific committee on “Nanomaterial Workers' Health” and member of those on “Occupational Toxicology” and “Toxicology of Metals”, President of the Italian Society of Reference Values, President of the section Campania of the Italian Society of Occupational Medicine.

He is a member of the Editorial Board of following journals: “Science of the Total Environment”, “Journal of Occupational and Environmental Medicine”; “Journal of Occupational Medicine and Toxicology”, “Human and Experimental Toxicology”. He has also been Associate Editor of the international journal "Dose Response" and currently is the Associate Editor of the “La Medicina del Lavoro” and “Toxicology and Industrial Health”.